The Medical Officer of Health stated that, in all probability Edinglassie school would be able to open in about three weeks' time, so that the inconvenience would not be of sufficient duration to seriously affect the primary grades.

Beginners Class Will Commence After Easter

In reply to a letter from Miss Freeman, the Board decided from the week following the Easter Holidays as the most convenient time for beginners to commence school. This would enable the teacher to make plans for same; and would obviate the necessity of having too many stages in the first class.

A Plebiscite On
The Beer Question
Within One Year

(Published by request)

Expressing satisfaction that the Moore-Love resolution went through the legislature before amendments to the liquor act had come up for discussion, as farmer members can now speak and vote quite freely according to their individual opinions, R. C. Edwards, M.L.A., Independent member for Calgary, gave another interesting week end interview to The Albertan just before returning to Edmonton last night.

"Last week in the legislature was taken up," said he, "with the introduction and discussion of new bills and amendments to acts, each surcharged with an importance all its own, but of no popular appeal. For instance 'an act to provide for the extermination of agricultural pests' and 'an act to amend the Drainage Districts act, 1921,' are not calculated to stir the imagination of our dear old collegium, hol polloi, to any alarming extent."

"I noticed," remarked the reporter "that the Moore-Love resolution went through."

"You bet it did. Some said that it interfered with the prerogative of the king, and if that be so it was perhaps hardly fair on the part of Alec Moore and Russel Love to take advantage of his majesty's preoccupation with his daughter's wedding to put it over. However, I voted for it, and am glad that it passed before the attorney-general had introduced his amendments to the liquor act. The farmer-members can now speak and vote quite freely, according to their individual opinions without any suggestion of disloyalty to their own government."

"And when do you expect these interesting amendments to be introduced?" asked the reporter.

"Next Monday or Tuesday or Wednesday or Thursday or Friday, I should imagine. Nothing can be done by any of us until the attorney-general makes his pronouncement in the house. One gets all kinds of so-called 'inside information' on the subject, but it is mostly guess-work. One thing certain is that the new government is going to try its hand at enforcing the liquor act by a general tightening up all around. The drug stores are going to get a wallop in the midriff, and a couple of vendor stores are to be established in the outskirts of Calgary and Edmonton so as to enable Messrs. Hull, Bishop, to keep cases on the people wending their way out for booze. The bootleggers of Edmonton, at least—are all stocked up ready to make a big killing the moment the druggists are put out of the whiskey business."

"Can it be possible," ejaculated the astonished reporter, "that any Edmonton druggist can have been guilty of selling liquor?"

"The jovial boot-leggers of Edmonton are vastly amused over the idea of a Methodist parson being given a government position in connection with the enforcement of the liquor act. However, his appointment gratifies the pride of the Social Service League and pleases the publishing endeavors on behalf of sinful mankind, especially when there are other fat government jobs in the offing? The more bootleggers, the more jobs. Vive le Bootlegger! Three cheers for the moonshiners!"

"What are the personal views of the members of the new government on the respective merits of a liquor permit system, a lager beer system and an absolute bonedry system?" he was asked.

"Hanged if I know, Prohibition figured in the platform which sho'd the farmers into office, and they naturally feel in honor bound to try out rigid enforcement of the act. Of course, in doing so they will only get the country deeper in the mire, especially if they continue to allow themselves to be unduly influenced by well-meaning sociological ignoramus, both male and female, who innocently enough are striving to sober up the province on moonshine whiskey."

"Does the present government," asked the reporter, "show any surface indications of being amendable to argument in favor of legalizing the sale of beer?"

"I cannot say as to that. The new government is essentially a conscientious government, and intends making an honest effort to carry out its obligations to the people who put take them to realize that the basic idea underlying prohibition is temperance and nothing more, that is the lap of the Gods."

"What Gods?" queried the curious reporter.

"Well, Bacchus for one—"

"And how ong before they are likely to grant a new plebiscite on the subject?"

"Possibly a year from now. The day is not far distant when they will be only too glad to adopt the enlightened beer policy which I have been advocating for, lo! these many moons."

"They really ought to try out your beer policy first!" shouted the excited reporter.

"They should, but the uplifters and reformers won't let 'em

"Why not?"

"Because then the problem would be solved and the uplifters would have nothing to cackle about and the reformers would lose their jobs. The delightful activities of these charming beings lots of sinners, and if the province of Alberta were suddenly ot get sobered up on light, harmless, honest old lager beer, they would all have to go to work. Which is unthinkable."

To prevent cakes from burning, grease the tins with lard—not butter—and sprinkle lightly with flour.

"Don't say it! Don't say it!" "If you have a few empty bottles to spare, pint or quart size."

"Out of my way, woman, I'll take them over myself."

CO-OPERATION IS KEYNOTE OF BANK OF MONTREAL

HISTORY OF OVER ONE HUNDRED YEARS OF STEADY GROWTH AND USEFULNESS

The Bank of Montreal, which has just taken over the Merchants Bank of Canada, is the oldest Bank of the Dominion. It was established in 1817 and during over a century of co-operation in developing Canadian trade and industry has been so closely allied with many of the largest undertakings of the country that its history is largely the history of the Dominion. The oldest Bank in British North America and one of the largest in the British Empire, it has effected this great work with such a kindly touch of co-operation that it has always enjoyed the confidence, one might almost say the affection, of all Canadians.

Looking back over its undertakings of 100 years and scanning the different groups of men that have succeeded one another in the direction and administration of the affairs of the Bank, one is immediately struck by the high ideals they have always attained and their faithfulness in maintaining the best traditions of the Bank which has been confided to their care. On closer examination, one is almost tempted to remark that one of the underlying facts in the remarkable success of the Bank is the jealous manner in which its officers have respected and passed along the traditions of the earlier days.

With these traditions the Bank has become something more than merely a banker to its customers. It has gone much further and whether the customer was an individual, a company municipality or Government, the Bank has sought to lend entire co-operation and to give the benefit of its full experience in order that their problems might be worked out and success attained.

There are so many Canadians who today take pride in telling of the help they received in the early days of their struggle as a result of this policy that might truthfully be said that the Bank of Montreal has played a prominent part in the development of every industry that to-day thrives in Canada.

Such hearty co-operation evidently had as its foundation absolute confidence in the future of Canada. This confidence has been fully justified, and it is when one looks back 50 or 100 years that one appreciates the courage and foresight it required to gauge aright the opportunities that were ahead.

And so the Bank of Montreal has grown to be more than a Bank—it is an institution.

Its growth and expansion have been like those of many other Canadian concerns. It came from very small and humble beginnings, but gradually and steadily it expanded and as the population spread out over the North America continent, the Bank of Montreal expanded its branch system in order to play its full part in the development of the resources of the country.

For a great many years it has also served as fiscal agent for the Government of the Dominion of Canada and in this capacity has been able to lend valuable assistance in shaping the helping to keep its condition at all times sound.

Furthermore, although the bank is an institution of remarkable strength and solidity, it must not be forgotten that many, if not most, of its offices are situated in small towns, and its services are therefore necessarily devoted very largely to the farmer and the small business man. It is true that many of the largest business and industrial concerns in the country avail themselves of the banking facilities which this institution is able to offer, but the policy of the bank is service first, whether in connection with large accounts or small ones, and the attention and care devoted to small accounts both in cities and in rural districts from one of the reasons why the Bank of Montreal is held in such high repute throughout the Dominion.

Organization Of The Bank

It was on the 23rd of June, 1817, that nine merchants of Montreal, namely John Richardson, George Garden, George Moffatt, Thomas A. Turner, Robert Armour, James Leslie, Horatio Gates, John C. Bush, and Austin Cuvillier, signed Articles of Association for the formation of the "Montreal Bank."

The first meeting of the stockholders was held on the 7th August, 1817. At this meeting the following directors were elected: John Gray, who became the first President; Thomas A. Turner, the first Vice-President; John Forsyth, George Garden, George Moffatt, Horatio Gates, Fred W. Ermatinger, John McTavish, Austin Cuvillier, James Leslie, Haram Nichols, George Platt and Zabdill Thayer.

The directors and chief officers having been elected, the organization of the Bank for the conduct of business was immediately effected. A house, occupied by Robert Armour, in St Paul Street, Montreal between St. Nicholas and St. Francois Xavier Streets was selected for the Bank premises and rented until the 1st of the following year.

The Bank was appointed on the 2nd August. They were Robert Griffin, cashier; Henry Dupuy, accountant; Henry B. Stone, paying teller; and James Jackson, second teller. A discount clerk and second bookkeeper and porter were added shortly afterwards and it was with this staff of seven that the Bank began business.

The announcement regarding the opening business was inserted in the local papers on the 23rd October, 1817 and read as follows:—

"The Bank of Montreal will commence operation on Monday, November 3: Bank hours, 10 to 3 Discount days, Tuesday and Friday Bills and Notes for discount to be delivered to the cashier on the previous day."

Promptly at the time appointed, the modest establishment in St Paul Street opened its doors and the Bank was started which was destined to play such a beneficial part in Canada's resources. Two weeks after the opening of the Bank, the directors appointed an agent at Quebec. In the following June the agency became an office of discount and deposit and a month later agents were appointed at Kingston and York (later called Toronto.)

Bank Moves to St. James St.

Bank moves to St James Street From the first it was recognized that the rental of the Bank premises was to be a temporary expedient and within a few weeks after commencing business the directors acquired two lots of land on St. James Street for a house bought from James McDougall for $2,000 and after long occupancy by the Bank, became the site of the general Post Office of Montreal, which immediately adjoins on the west of present Head Office of the Bank. The plans for a building were approved early in 1818 and the structure ready for occupancy in 1819.

The chief shareholders of the Bank did not have to wait long for a tangible reward of their enterprise. The business was sufficient both in volume and profits to warrant to directors in declaring, at the end of a year's operations, a dividend of 8 per cent upon the capital paid in. From that time to the present, with the exception of 1827 and 1828, the Bank has never failed to pay dividends to its shareholders. Concurrently with the declaration of a dividend, the directors displayed farsighted financial wisdom in placing a portion of the profits in a Reserve Fund. Thus they started the Bank's Rest, which with the accumulation during a period of more than a century amounts now to the sum of $22,000,000.

During this time the Bank operating under the Articles of 1817, but at the same time it was endeavouring to obtain the sanction to do business either by Act of the British Parliament or by Royal Charter. As early as October, 1817, the stockholders at a general meeting had decided to apply to the Legislature for an Act of Incorporation. There was some delay in connection with the bill, but in 1821 the Legislature granted a Charter which received the Royal Assent on May 18th, 1822. The Capital stock was fixed at £250,000.

Naturally the Bank had to meet many periods of great un-

BELIEF AND ACTION

We believe in Chauvin because we live in it. We believe in because it is the centre of a splendid district. We believe in it because it is a good town, regardless of its few defects, and its people are the peers of those to be found anywhere.

If you believe in your home town you will like it, and if you like it no towards its improvement will be so great for you.

Again we ask you to have faith in your own powers; to also have faith in your own town.

When you feel like criticizing it, check the thought before spoken. You can always find something good to say instead, and even then the half of the truth will never be told.

It is a good town now, but faith is a better one. Our faith in this town, brother, is simply faith in you—because the town is a collection of you's. Surely your faith is not less than ours.

Let us unite—let us act—for a more cohesive community. It is your home—and ours.

BOTTLES AT DANCES

Almost invariably there seems to be some one who thinks that by bringing a bottle along they are contributing to the enjoyment of the dance. We may in our most tolerant frame of mind think they are trying to maintain the age-old custom, or we may in exasperation call such folks an intolerable nuisance and disgrace.

It is really too bad when the organizers of a dance have taken trouble to arrange every thing for the pleasure of those attending, to find their efforts marred by the presence of that which the public have voted out.

There are quite a few folks in the community who wish their sons and daughters to be free of the direct and indirect effects of "liquor" and their views are fully entitled to respect.

To say the very least it is certainly impolite to introduce the "bottle" on these occasions.

A Jack Tar went into a foreign church where he heard some one uttering the words: "Ah! mihi, beate Martini". On giving an account of his adventures, Jack interpreted the phrase as sounding like, "All my eye and Betty Martin". Hence the well-known saying.

Local Bank Becomes Branch Of Bank Of Montreal To-Day

Our local bank to day becomes a branch of the Bank of Montreal. An official telegraphic communication to this effect having been received by the local staff.

A lengthy article appears in this issue giving an insight into the history of the Bank of Montreal. It is a matter of no little importance that our local bank is linked up with such a strong institution, and we may enjoy every confidence in the management.

Local Talent Wins Approval

At a recent convention of Alberta Fairs Mrs. T. Armour was asked to give a paper on "Should Agriculture be Taught in Public Schools?"

Her sentiments on this question seemed to hit the convention just right, and a motion was passed that it be printed and sent to the Minister of Education.

The Secretary of the Association did so, and the following reply was sent to Mr. G. G. Braith, Superintendent of the Alberta Fairs, from Deputy Minister Ross:—

DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION
Province of Alberta
Dear Mr. G. G. Braith,

I wish to thank you for the copy of the paper read by Mrs. Armour of Chauvin. I have read this paper with considerable pleasure, and am pleased to learn that she has taken such a san view of what education in rural schools should be.

I will have this paper read by a number of the members of our staff.

Yours truly,
J. F. Ross,
Deputy Minister

Local Notes Of Interest

Mr. Sutherland, our local bank manager, caught a severe chill on his recent business trip to Edmonton and is seriously indisposed. We wish him a speedy recovery.

What about setting your tomato seeds in boxes. Guess it's about time.

A very bright and novel entertainment will be given here on March 31st by the "Chauvin Follies".

Spurious Stock Feed On Market

In view of the elimination of all cream-buying stations throughout the province on the 1st of May, as provided for by special legislation passed by the Alberta Legislature last week, the Swift Canadian Company is making use of our advertising columns during the next few weeks in order to call attention to their exceptional facilities for handling direct cream shipments. Backed by very large financial resources, and manufacturing butter on a big scale, the company is in a position to pay the very highest prices for cream on an absolutely cash basis. During the past few years the cream-buying business of the Swift Co. has increased to a phenomenal extent, and the new publicity plans of the company ensure that that increase will be maintained in an even greater ratio in the future. This is the first time in the history of the company that the newspapers of the province that the weekly newspapers of Alberta have been used for advertising purpose, and this fact is a tribute to the growing power of the weekly newspaper as an advertising medium.

Irish Social At Artland School

A St. Patrick's Day social was held on Friday evening March 17th, in the Artland Public school, when the pupils presented a program in keeping with the day celebrated.

An appreciative audience enjoyed program numbers and the hour's dancing which followed. The most interesting feature of the evening was presentation of an Irish Character Sketch entitled "An Interrupted Proposal", which was given a very realistic rendering and drew forth much applause. Those taking part were Minnie McKague, Myrtle McKague, Alice Merritt, and Frank Merritt.

In addition to the choruses, "Killarney" and "Isle of Beauty," given by the whole school, there were solos, trios and quartettes' the songs including "The Harp that once Through Tara's Halls," by Myrtle McKague, Pearl Rose, Jessie Merritt; a solo, "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms," by Beulah Reynolds; and "The Last Rose of Summer" by Minnie McKague, Alice Merritt and Myrtle McKague. The accompaniments were played by Messrs Arthur McKague (violin) and Victor Clark, (cornet); Frank Merritt gave an Irish reading, and Lincoln McKague an Irish jig. Every number was well received and the pupils were heartily complimented on their successful efforts to entertain their audience. The proceeds amounted to $12.00, and will go towards the purchase of furnishings for the new schoolhouse.

The next monthly social open to the public will be held Easter Monday evening, April 17th, when the adult citizens of Artland and district will present the program.

Spurious Stock Feed On Market

In administering the Feeding Stuffs Act the Seed Commissioner at Ottawa has made the discovery that many commercial stock feeds are adulterated with worthless substances which give only bulk and weight. A product sold as barley meal at $4 a bag, was found by microscopical examination to contain no barley whatever. The material consisted of a mixture of of ground corn, sorghum, bean meal and ground oat hulls. This mixture had the merit of containing some nutritive value. Another mixture sold as ground oil cake, however, was much less valuable inasmuch as it consisted to a large extent of ground coconut shells, which is a very indigestible product, together with a little linseed meal and barley flour. These discoveries unfortunately shatter confidence in feed mixtures in general, many of which are sound and good. They go to prove, however, the necessity for a careful enforcement of the Feeding Stuffs Act. Arrangements have been made by the Seed Commissioner for the examination of samples of feeds purchased by farmers where there is reason to believe that misrepresentation or fraud has been practiced.

GARDENING

BY A LOCAL GARDENER

The Strawberry And Its Culture

The wild strawberries are widely distributed throughout the world and although small they have a flavor preferred by many people to the garden varieties.

There are a great many cultivated varieties which have been chiefly derived from the Chilean strawberry and the Virginian species, all of which are good. But some are of outstanding ferits and fore suitable to our immediate neighborhood than others.

The varieties may be divided into bearing. Probably the best varieties two classes: Standard and Ever-bearing for this district are, Standard varieties—Wakefield (Imp), Senator Dunlop (Per), Everbearing varieties are the Progressive (per), and the Superbb (per).

Warfield (Imp) an old favorite, early, of strong growth, and a heavy cropper. Berries medium size, smooth, dark red, and they are excellent for canning.

Senator Dunlop (per) is a deservedly popular variety of vigorous growth producing a large quantity of big, dark red, glossy berries, studded with bright yellow seeds which add greatly to its appearance. The fruit is of fine form and excellent flavor.

Progressive everbearing (per) is a strong, vigorous grower and a good drought resister. The fruit is medium large, of a delicious flavor and nearly free of acid making it a general favorite.

Superb everbearing, a plant of low spreading habits, not as productive as the Progressive but producing larger dark red berries of excellent flavor from June till late fall.

Strawberry plants are divided into two sexes, male or bisexual and female or pistillate. The male or bisexual varieties produce blossoms having both male and female organs are self pollinizing and will produce fruit independently of the female or pistillate varieties. The blossoms produced by the female or pistillate varieties, however, have only female organs and will not produce berries unless they are grown in close proximity to bisexuals. Therefore to ensure proper fertilization of pistillate varieties every fourth row should be planted to a bisexual variety of the safe fruiting season as the pistillate variety.

The Standard variety generally have a short fruiting season, and produce one crop a year. Should a late frost come along about the time they are in bloom the crops for the season would be lost.

The everbearing varieties, however, are different in this respect, and it is a very important difference. Should their first blossoms be destroyed by frost the plants continue to produce fruit continuously from about June to September so that with other conditions right it would not be unreasonable to expect a good crop of berries in any ordinary season.

The strawberry succeeds best on a moderately heavy, rich, thoroughly drained soil with a sunny exposure, and sheltered from north and west winds.

In selecting a place in the garden, choose one where the snow lies deep in the winter, as it affords considerable protection and moisture for the plants. It is better to well work the cannot be done it should be performed as early in the spring as conditions will permit, digging deep and adding a liberal supply of well rotted manure, thoroughly mixed and packed firm. With the rake break up all lumps and leave the surface even and fine ready for setting plants.

There are several systems of planting, The matted row, single hedge row, and the hill system. Where fruit of large size and superior quality is desired for private use the latter system is best. Plants ordered from distant nurseries will sometimes arrive before conditions are suitable for planting, the package should be opened at once to prevent the plants from heating or drying out. They should be heeled in until they can be planted: this is done by making a V shaped trench about 8 inches deep, shake out the plants and place in a row in the trench, close together, keeping the crowns level with the surface of the ground. Cover the roots with a light covering of soil and proceed to place another layer of plants until they are all heeled in and water thoroughly.

Set plants in rows 15 to 18 inches between the plants and 2 to 2 1/2 feet between the rows. A spade, dibble or trowel are preferable. Make holes deep enough and large enough to hold the roots without doubling them. With the left hand take a plant holding it by the crown, drop the roots in the hole, keeping the crown level with the ground. Press the soil firmly around so that no air spaces will be left between the rootlets. If the plants are set too deep or too shallow they will die out. It is therefore of the utmost importance that they be set at the proper depth. All roots should be below, and the crown of the plant just level with the ground.

Remove all blossoms and runners on Standard varieties the first year.

Remove the first blooms on everbearing varieties, and all but two runners, which should be laid length wise in the row.

Immediately after setting commence cultivation not more than 2 or 3 inches deep and as close to the plants as possible. Keep the surface loose and free from weeds and grass. Mulch the plants with straw or stable manure containing a large proportion of straw, this will help retain moisture and keep the frost off the ground. If during a spell of hot dry weather the plants begin to suffer for want of moisture and watering must be resorted to, the best plan is to make a hole with a posthole digger or crowbar, between every two plants from 1 ft to 18 inches deep and fill with water preferably in the evening, next day when the water has soaked in return the soil.

Strawberry plants for all their size produce a very large amount of fruit and they naturally require a corresponding amount of plant food. Commercial fertilizers are good and easy of application, but a simpler and better plan is to make liquid manure by taking a pail of fresh manure place in a sack, soak in a barrel of water. In applying take 1 gallon of liquid manure and dilute with 6 gallons of water and apply as advised for watering at intervals during the fruiting season.

About the end of September the ground should get a good watering which will put the plants in good shape for going into winter. After freeze up give the plants a heavy mulch of stable manure at least inches deep which should not be removed until growth has started the following spring, when it should be forked in and cultivation commence to conserve moisture and keep down weeds.

Mrs. Goodbody: "And how long were you a prisoner?"

Hobo: "Five years, ma'am."

Mrs. Goodbody: "But the war didn't last five years."

Hobo: "Who's talking about the war, ma'am?"

Mr. Jones saw a small boy carrying a big bundle of newspapers under his arm. He felt sorry for the youngster and said: "Don't all those papers make you tired, my boy?"

"No," replied the lad: "I don't read them."

est, depression and strife, for the early history of the colony was a dubious one. There were amongst other things the French rebellions, and the bitter strife between Upper and Lower Canada. The condition of the colony led for the exercise of the great diligence on the part of the directors of the Bank.

The period between 1830 and 1840 was a trying one, owing principally to the rebellion which occurred in Lower Canada. When trouble was at its height the bank transferred its specie to Quebec and deposited it in the bank for safe keeping. The Papineau Rebellion than occurred and the Hon. Peter McGill, then President of the Bank, was the first man to raise a volunteer force to defend law and order. The financial position of the United States at that time forced the Banks to suspend specie payments and in Canada the Banks were forced to follow suit. Specie payments were resumed in 1839.

Through it all, however, the Bank continued to make steady progress, and in addition to the branches already opened, several were opened in Upper Canada among others an office was established at Bytown (now Ottawa), in 1840. By this Branch system the Bank of Montreal founded the bank policy of Canada, which has resulted in elasticity of circulation, regarded as the most attractive feature of the Canadian banking system.

When Upper and Lower Canada were united in 1841 the Bank obtained a new charter with an authorised capital of £750,000. A period of great development followed and the Bank took full advantage of the opportunity of extending its operations. Even then the conditions were of a primitive character, especially in the way of transportation. The only railway in the country was a small line of 17 miles between Laprairie and St Johns Que., which formed part of the route between Montreal and New York. The Allan line opened its ocean steamship service in 1852 and about the same time the Grand Trunk and Great Western Railways were started. These greatly helped general progress. The Bank was in a very solid position when the American Civil War came to disturb the econowar proved a blessing in disguise as far as the Bank was concerned for under the able management of Mr E. H. King, who afterwards became its president, it made large profits by loaning its ample funds in New York at highly favorable rates.

Confederation enabled the Bank still further to extend its operations. It at once took a leading part in the financial life of the Dominion. Just as it helped in its early years to finance the building of the Lachine Canal, so it helped later in providing the magnificent transportation system which has meant so much in opening up and developing the country.

The Bank's Impregnable Position

In the first year of its existence the Bank started building up an ample reserve and initiated the policy it has ever since rigidly adhered to, of keeping a large part of its funds liquid, so that it might at all times and under any circumstances be in an impregnable position and be ready to meet any emergency. Today its reserve fund amounts to no less than $22,000,000 while its authorized capital without taking into account that of the Merchants Bank, is $28,075,000 and its proportion of liquid assets to liabilities to the Public is 62 per cent. The Bank now has branches in every part of the Dominion, and important Branches in the United States, London and Paris.

Throughout its history strong mercantile and industrial interests have been identified with the affairs of the Bank, and by their experience and judgment have enabled it to exercise a marked influence in connection with the most important undertakings in the country.

For instance, the Hon. John Malson, one of the historic pioneers in steamboat navigation, became a director of the Bank in 1826, and at the same time was appointed its President. He was the founder in Canada of the Molson family, which has been distinguished from his day to the present time for its energy, spirit and benefactions to education and charity.

The Hon. Peter McGill who was President of the Bank for 26 years, was another outstanding figure. During his term of office the Bank passed through three great commercial and financial crises, and emerged stronger than ever. He had been chairman of the first railway in Canada, and was a director of the Grand Trunk Railway Company as well as amember of the Legislative Council of the Province.

Mr E. H. King, who was manager of the Bank at the time of the American Civil War and later became its president, was one of the most able and influential men of his day.

Mr George Stephen, (the late Lord Mount Stephen) and Mr R. B. Angus are others who served the Bank well in executive capacity, as did also Mr Donald Smith (afterwards Lord Strathcona) who, with the two gentlemen previously named, was a director of the Bank at the time when it was actively identified with the growth and expansion of the Canadian Northwest. Lord Strathcona remained the president until recent years, when his duties as High Commissioner for Canada in London compelled him to relinquish the office in 1905.

Sir George Drummond and Sir Edward Cluston were two other notable figures in the Bank's recent history.

The directorate of the Bank at the present time contains a notable array of leading figures in and it is generally felt that the traditions of the institution are worthily upheld by Sir Vincent Meredith, Bart., the President, and Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor, the General Manager. Both have served with the Bank from their early youth.

The Bank and the War

As the agents of the Dominion Government, and as the banker of other banks, the Bank of Montreal rendered notable service to the country during the war. By calling in large amounts to specie which it had invested abroad, available at short notice, it steadied the financial situation in Canada at a time when great apprehension was entertained, and it thus contributed largely to enabling the country to tide over the period of depression which supervened between the outbreak of war and the reorganization of our industrial and economic life. In the difficult problems of finance which the Government and the country have been faced with from time to time since the close of the war, and Bank has lent invaluable aid.

Not the least service which the Bank of Montreal has rendered to the country is the steadying influence which it exerted when a crisis arose in the affairs of the Merchants Bank, and the manner in which it brought its resources and experience to bear not only in preventing any losses to the clients of that bank but also in preventing anything even remotely resembling a dislocation in the business with which the Merchants Bank was associated. It is generally felt that the customers of the Merchants Bank have been fortunate in finding that the Bank which has served them so well has been able, when difficulties arose, to merge with such a strong and helpful institution as the Bank of Montreal.

NO SCHOLLARD

Remarking that parents have abandoned the habit of giving their infants strings of Christian names, the author of "Recollections and Reflections" writes:

"A parson in Somersetshire was christening a child in his village. He could not gather whether the child's name was to be Anna or Hannah, so stooping down he asked the mother, 'How do you spell it?'

"In an embarrassed and confidential whisper she replied, 'Well, I aint no schollard neither, sir.'"
